

TylerByrne.com

TylerByrne.com is a personal portfolio website dedicated to my accomplishments, credentials, skills, and personal information about myself.

As a soon to be graduate from Michigan State University, with a degree in information science, I believe it would be very beneficial to create a personal portfolio in order to get myself out there more and really showcase my skill set to potential employers. Having a personal portfolio is a great way to accomplish this and I believe that it is even more impressive if I created the website from scratch. Also, I think that it is the most effective way to show future employers all of your information and it can really say a lot about you with how you personally customize it. On the portfolio webpage I would like to list all the things I named in the short pitch and also put my resume, work experience, and other projects that I have created.

Personas

Riley Moore, age: 35.
Talent Acquisition
Sourcer at IBM (senior level). Viewing website for recruitment purpose.

Justin Herbert, age: 22. Junior level information security analyst. Friend from college. Viewing my website to give me tips and show his other coworkers to try and get me a job.

Maria Garcia, age: 29.
Senior information security analyst for a bank. Viewing my profile because she is in the same position I want to get hired for so, she hopefully will show others at work.
